Mrs. Russell Kemp Passes On Saturday

Lived Here For Greater Part Of Life Before Going To Detroit Two Years Ago

The death of Mrs. Louise Shropshire Kemp, which took place at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Shropshire on Vine street, Proximity on Saturday afternoon, brought deep sorrow not only to her family but to a wide circle of friends in Proximity and the surrounding communities. Mrs. Kemp had lived in White Oak and Proximity the greater part of her life, though she had moved, with her husband and children, to Detroit, Mich., about two years ago. After a serious illness there she was brought to the home of her parents where she spent the past three months. She was known and loved for her sweet and loving disposition and was a devoted daughter, wife and mother.

Mrs. Kemp is survived by her husband and the following children Bobby Toby Ann, and Cooky Kemp; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Shropshire, and the following brothers and sisters: Odell and Robert Shropshire, Mrs. Margaret James, Mrs. Frances Nichols and Mrs. Jessie Lee Whitt.

Funeral services were held at the Eller Memorial Baptist church on Monday afternoon and were conducted by Rev. J. H. Smith, Rev. Harold Loman and Rev. R. C. Goforth. Interment was in Proximity cemetery.

Fifty-Nine New Members Join Y. First Half May

Harvey Strickland and Otis Bowden Leading Membership Drive With Nine Each For Month

With one half of May gone and fifty-nine members inducted into the fellowship of the Cone Memorial Young Men's Christian association it does seem possible that we may yet strike the one hundred mark for the month and send the membership enrollment up to a substantial higher level as we approach the centennial birthday of the Y.M.C.A. in more than sixty nations of the world.

Mack Davis during last month set the pace when he introduced some eleven members; this record stired two of our Proximity Emblem club workers to action, namely, Harvey Strickland and Otis Bowden, who are leading the field with nine new members each for the month of May. Clarence Hobbs, has turned in three new members; Mack Fulk, Freda Flintom and Katherine Leonard. I J. Kidd, David Sink and Etta Pickard have submitted one each. All of this is good! We are greatly encouraged by your efforts and cooperation.

There is another group within the membership that has for twenty-three years gone unheardled and for the most part without any recognition. It is the group of charter members of the Cone Memorial YMCA. We want you to fill in the blank below if you joined the Y. when it opened and have carried without any brake a continuous membership. Our records were never kept from the beginning and we would greatly appreciate it if you would let us know who you are for the centennial recognition, June 8th.

The world premiere of the symphony which Morton Gould, brilliant young American composer, has written as a tribute to the youth of the world for the 100 anniversary of the YMCA will be performed by the New York Philharmonic-Symphony on Sunday, June 4th, according to word received today by A. S. Arnold, general secretary of the local YMCA., from his organization's headquarters in New York

The performance will be broadcast from Carnegie Hall over the Columbia Broadcasting System from 3:00 to 4:30 p.m., E.W.T. and will be short waved around the world as part of the 100th anniversary observance of more than 10,000 YMCA's in 68 countries. Vladimir Golschmann will be guest conductor for the occasion.

"There are some unique aspects to the symphony and its first performance which will make the occasion one of unusua significance." Mr. Arnold said.

"The composition, which has assumed the proportions of a major work in four movements, is called 'A Symphony on Marching Tunes'. Mr. Gould, commissioned nearly a year ago by the YMCA to compose a symphony which would reflect the spirit of youth, describes his work as 'expressing the idea of young people and young spirits marching forward to a better future.' "

"It is interesting to me that its completion and first performance come at a 'zero hour' when our American young men and the youth of many countries fighting for the cause of freedom are marching forward, willing to make the supreme sacrifice for a better future."

Another unusual aspect of the premiere performance, Mr. Arnold pointed out, is the fact that two great organizations representing American culture and business, each more than 100 years old—the Philharmonic and the United States Rubber company, which sponsors the Philharmonic broadcast concerts—will join with the composer in paying tribute to the youth of the world and to the Y, as the world's largest youth organization as it begins its second centure of service.

The work is being scored for symphonic bands as well as for full symphony orchestra, Mr. Arnold indicated.

Proximity Surgical Dressings Room News

Class Regrets Losing Mrs. E. P. Talley Who Begin Work Last Monday

Twelve workers at the Proximity Red Cross surgical dressings room Monday night made nine hundred and fifty-five surgical dressings for our armed services. This is a record to be proud of and if production continues at this rate this will be a record month. Through May 15 the workers have made over 2400 dressings this month. Those present on Thursday night were: Mrs. J. D. Whitt, Mrs. Stanley Bumgarner and Mrs. R. C. Goforth On Monday night workers were: Mrs. C. S. Beeker, Mrs. J. T. Carruthers, Mrs. A. B. Caudle, Mrs. A. S. Arnold, Mrs. Everett Johnson, Mrs. Frank Boone, Mrs. Ed Hutson, Mrs. Lawrence Forrester, Mrs. H. B. Ritter, Miss Millicent Maness, Miss Anna Motz, Miss Frances Holman and Miss Phoebe Richards.

Mrs. E. P. Talley was not present on Monday night because she has been employed by Proximity Mill and began work Monday. This is a real loss to the surgical dressings room because Mrs. Talley was a good worker and one of the most faithful members of the group. However, she only moved her place of service, for in the mill she makes materials which are just as necessary to our boys in service as the dressings we make for those who are wounded.

Washington Snapshots

Administration brass-hats will never admit it, but many Capital observers believe that a group of House Republicans should be credited at least with an assist, on the recent "agreement in principle" reached with the British on postwar monetary plans.

The British and American financial experts had been meeting for many months trying to agree on a plan. Some progress was made, but the conferees remained divided on several vital issues.

The American negotiators clung firmly to the principles of the original White plan, under which the United States, as the heaviest contributor, would virtually run the international financial show. The British insisted with equal firmness on the Keynes plan which would give them the control. The other nations awaited developments, declining to take sides.

Meanwhile a group of House Republicans began sniffing suspiciously at what seemed to them an invasion of Congress' traditional prerogatives in effecting monetary policy. Rep. Dewey of Ill., tossed a resolution into the hopper to the effect that the United States would keep a firm grip on its postwar purse strings, and would have the sole say on what nations it would lend money to, and how much. Moreover it provided only a half bilion dollars for loan purposes, as against about seven and a half billion under the White plan.

The Republican group forced the House Foreign Relations committee to agree to hold hearings, and a surprising amount of support for Dewey's program—at least in principle—was marshalled from New York financial circles.

The British financial experts made a hasty study of the Dewey bill, and, in the words of an English newspaperman, "they decided we wouldn't fare too badly under Harry White's plan after all."

Proximity Community Club Invites Public To Attend Movies

Moving Pictures To Be On Subject Of Cancer Control; Dr. Lennon To Be Speaker

The Proximity Community club is inviting the entire community to see the movies which will be shown at the regular meeting time on Tuesday, May 23, at 7:30 in the social room of the Proximity welfare department.

The moving pictures will be on the subject of Cancer Control and Dr. H. C. Lennon, Greensboro Pathologist, will talk informally and answer questions. Cancer is known as "Our Worst Enemy" and causes more deaths than any other disease other than heart diseases. Last year Cancer caused more deaths than the war.

Doctors and research specialists have found that when Cancer is diagnosed early and treated properly, the victims can, in most cases, enjoy many years of good health.

The committee in charge of the program is Miss Richards, Mrs. Jim Everhart and Mrs. Jim Overman.

Don't forget to come and bring someone else with you.

In Memory

Written in memory of my brother, Pvt. Ernest C. Smith, United States Infantry, who was killed in action in Italy, March 29, 1944.

He went away, he gave his life
He left his baby and his wife.
He died out there, but no one knew
The loneliness that he went through.

Remember him: He died for you
He gave his life for the Red, White and Blue.
He gave his life that we may be
In the land of freedom and liberty.

He had a wife that was true
His baby's eyes were sparkling blue.
They always lived a happy life
He, his baby and his wife.

Revolution Girl Scouts Have Outing

The Revolution Girl Scout troop enjoyed a long hike the afternoon of May 10 out on Yanceyville road, which terminated around a camp fire. Weiners were roasted over the coals, and rolls, slaw, onions, mustard and pickles were supplied in sufficient quantity to satisfy twenty-two typical scout appetities. Ice cold lemonade was served.

Those participating in this most delightful outdoor trrip were: Mary Lee Leonard, Ernestine Leonard, Raymond Jeanette Brown, Doris Johnson, Jaynelle Martin, Grace Smith, Louise Ward; Norma Jean Kelly, Patsy Saunders, Ronnie Moore, Rachel Hussey, Ann Hodson, Lydia Ward, Barbara Moore, Terry Stevens, Amarylis Stevens, Charlotte Jones, Elizabeth Rhodes, Betty Beal, Patsy Newnam, Martha Haynes and three visitors who wish to join the troop, Francois Laughlin, Judith Newnam and Lydia Ward.

Mrs. Taylor Turner and Mrs. Steele accompanied the Scouts.

Revolution Red Cross Dressing Class News

On Thursday afternoon, May 11, four workers made two hundred and thirty-nine dressings in a total of eight hours work. Those present were Mesdames Eda Hinshaw, chairman; Kate Newnam, W. L. Newnam and W. J. Darby.

The evening class time has been changed from Tuesday to Monday evening. Those who cannot come to one group are urged to attend the other and help fill our May quota of three thousand dressings.

On Monday evening eight workers made four hundred and eight dressings in a total of fifteen and one-half hours. Those workers were: Miss Fanny Paul Ivey and Mesdames Eda Hinshaw, L. G. Newton, W. K. Ritter, Jewel Martin, Kate Newnam, N. B. Martin and John Lowe.

Card of Thanks

The family of Mrs. Louise Shropshire Kemp wish to take this means of thanking their neighbors and friends for their kindness and sympathy during their recent bereavement. The thoughtfulness of friends and the lovely flowers were a source of great comfort.

National Cotton Week this year will be held next week (May 22 to 27). The event comes a week later than usual and is scheduled to occur during the period when retail presentations of summer cotton merchandise are at their height.

Unlike previous Cotton Weeks, which were based on liberal supplies of all types of cotton products, this year's celebration will emphasize the role of cotton in peace and war and bring to the attention of consumers the many new uses developed by necessities of war which will be serving consumer needs after hostilities cease. It will also give retailers an opportunity to explain the lack of assortments in many kinds of cotton goods and to teach consumers to conserve what they have.

The slogan for the event is "First in War, First in Peace" and around this theme will be built many retail displays showing military cotton war items and their future civilian applications once governmental restrictions are lifted.

Commenting on plans for the National Cotton Week event, Dr. C. T. Murchison, president, Cotton-Textile Institute, states: "The cotton textile industry has done and is doing an amazing job in the face of incredible difficulties. Despite the lack of manpower, shortages in equipment, supplies and transportation, the industry has produced and delivered billions of yards of vital materials to the armed forces, met the war-swollen demands of agriculture and the armament industries, supplied large quantities of goods for lend-lease and relief and withall managed to keep civilians supplied with the clothing and home furnishings that have long been an important component of the American peacetime standard of living.

The time has now arrived, however, for that extra effort that will be needed to carry us over the most crucial period of the war. Armies and navies on the move consume unbelievable amounts of cotton products and it is the paramount duty of the industry to see to it that these amounts are on the battle front when they are needed. As a consequence, supplies of certain items for consumers may be reduced.

At present about 70 per cent of the production of the cotton industry is being used to clothe and equip the fighting forces or in the manufacture of the instruments of war. Over the remainder of the year the amounts of cotton goods available for consumers will be smaller than in any period in recent history. It is for this reason that most retailers will so plan their presentations that emphasis will be on the war uses of cotton and the consequent necessity for consumers to take care of the cotton items now in their wardrobes.

PROXIMITY PROX. PRINT WORKS — CONE MILLS FABRICS — WHITE OAK REVOLUTION

Greensboro, North Carolina, Friday, May 19, 1944

Let's Do It

The North Carolina Industrial Commission is furnishing the various industries in the State with an analysis of the accident records for the fiscal year ending June 1943. These analyses are very informative and should serve a very beneficial purpose in enabling industry to reduce the number of accidents. In the local Cone Mills, the situation has not been very satisfactory for the last two years. This is indeed unfortunate, for there has been no time when full manpower was more urgently needed than during the above mentioned period.

Realizing that this manpower situation is growing increasingly worse, we feel that a double effort should be made to preserve every minute of time possible, and, certainly, accident prevention is one means by which productive labor can be saved.

In analyzing one of these reports, we find the handling of objects caused more than thirty-eight per cent of the total accidents in that plant. This revealing fact should give each supervisor and each employee something to think about. There is a right way and a wrong way to handle objects. Even slightly built people can lift comparatively large objects without suffering any discomfort whatsoever provided they do their lifting in the right manner. In the handling of objects, downright carelessness has been the prime factor in causing many accidents. No person can afford to jeopardize his safety or the safety of others by carelessness. Therefore, if those who handle objects—and that includes just about everybody—will first determine the proper way and follow that procedure, accidents caused by handling objects can be reduced to a bare minimum.

Next in line of accident frequency are accidents related to machinery, which in this particular plant was a little over twenty-eight per cent of the total. Here again an analysis of the machinery accidents was most revealing. In this particular plant, not a single one of the machinery accidents was caused by improper or no guarding or defective machinery. Every one of the accidents was caused by something the employee himself did or didn't do in performing his or her job.

It must be realized that in working safely there is a dual responsibility. In the first place, the supervisors should be certain that each and every employee under his supervision is properly instructed to work safely and as a follow-up to that instruction should see that each and every person actually works safely. It is likewise a definite responsibility on the part of the employee to work safely and thereby protect himself and his fellow-workers from painful and expensive accidents.

Next in line comes accidents caused by the use of hand tools. What is above stated about the handling of objects might likewise be said about the safe handling of hand tools. Hand tools represented approximately twelve per cent.

Tying third place with handling tools is accidents caused by falls of persons. Many factors contributed to these accidents. Poor housekeeping, wet floors, oil drips and no visible reasons for falls make up the list of things responsible for such accidents. It is the responsibility of supervisors to see that good housekeeping is maintained in their departments. Employees should certainly be interested in doing their part. It is certainly more pleasant and agreeable to work in a well-kept department, and furthermore, it is certainly conducive to good health and safety to remove the hazards of poor housekeeping. In walking and moving about, employees, for their own welfare, should always be alert to watch out for objects which may cause them to stumble or slip and for oily spots on the floor which might cause them to slip and fall.

As above stated, there never has been a time when it has been as important that we reduce accidents as far as possible as it is now. Certainly this is an important matter in which all of us can whole-heartedly cooperate. Let's do it.

"Supporting towers of our liberty are representative constitutional democracy, civil and religious liberty, and the individual's right to private property and economic activity of his own choice."—Pres. H. W. Prentis, Jr., Armstrong Cork Co.

"Any competent student of economics knows that the relationship of profit to the system of free enterprise is much like the relationship of gasoline to the auto—profit, like gasoline makes the machine go."—Dr. W. I. King, New York University.

"Women are hard to get, and harder to keep."—Secretary Ickes, speaking of female help in Interior Dept.

Let's stay on the job every day and thus help bring victory to the Allies sooner.

The kind of heady stuff that makes a mirror a pleasure to meet can be whipped up with cotton yarn in a few hours. It's hard to choose from the bevy of beauties shown in a new booklet of suggestions. Shall it be the tiny half shell with lace ruffle, fascinator, Dutch Treat, or some of the smooth hair ornaments that do things for one's crowning glory.

Revival By Rev. Houts

Rev. Roy T. Houts, who is an approved evangelist of the Methodist church, and a member of the Western North Carolina conference, is returning to Greensboro with Mrs. Houts for another evangelistic campaign, this time at St. Pauls Methodist church.

located at the corner of Vine and Twelfth streets.

Services will begin next Monday evening, May 22nd, at 7:45 o'clock, and will continue each evening at the same hour. The public is invited to attend these services.

Mr. Houts has been a pastor in the Western North Carolina conference for the past fourteen years and was named Conference Evangelist at the conference in Statesville last year. He is exceptionally well qualified for evangelistic work, having eight years experience in the Holston conference of Tennessee before coming to North Carolina. During this time, he was assisted by Mrs. Houts, who is also an experienced worker and a talented musician. Mrs. Houts is also a licensed preacher and is exceptionally well qualified for work with young people and children.

Rev. B. A. Sisk, pastor of St. Pauls, issues a cordial invitation to everyone to attend the services.

You'll just naturally like this Bank that serves the community--so well!

Meet Gregg Cherry

The Man With A Record of Service To His People

R. GREGG CHERRY

A career of distinguished service to the citizens of North Carolina, both as a public servant in peacetime and a machine-gun company captain during the First World War, is contained in the record of Major R. Gregg Cherry, 52-year-old Gastonia candidate for the governorship subject to the 1944 Democratic primary.

Orphaned at seven, Major Cherry was raised by his grandparents, worked on the farm and later on the Trinity College campus at Durham to obtain his education. He became and has remained a successful attorney, with his legal career having been interrupted, however, in 1917 when he volunteered his services in the First World War, serving overseas and rising to the rank of captain in the regular Army and later to the rank of major in the National Guard in which he was active until 1933.

Founder and commander of Gaston county's first American Legion post, he became State Commander of the N. C. Department of the American Legion in 1928. Prominent in fraternal and religious life, he is a member of the Masonic bodies, was Grand Chancellor of the Knights of Pythias in 1934 and has for many years been a member of the Board of Stewards of Gastonia's Main Street Methodist Church.

He has served in every session of the N. C. General Assembly since 1931, seven terms in the House and two in the senate. He was speaker of the House in the regular session of 1937 and in the special sessions of 1935 and 1939. He was chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee from 1937 to August 1940, a member of the State textbook rental commission in 1937 and the State school commission from 1933 to 1941. In every legislative session since 1931 he has been a member of the finance committee of either the House or Senate and has held numerous other important legislative chairmanships and memberships.

Gregg Cherry is a friend of the common man . . . he understands his problems. As a man and a statesman he has dealt with the problems of our people in all walks of life. His ability to understand all groups of people, and his record, is evidence of his deep-seated interest in the welfare of our State as a whole. Gregg Cherry has the courage of his convictions . . . demagoguery and irresponsible promises are completely foreign to his nature. He has in ample measure the qualifications North Carolina expects and deserves in her Governor.
